

My concept for this VR project is to display two seasons in a forest; summer and winter. There is no narrative nor goal, only to get lost and enjoy the scenery. My inspiration for this concept is the recent storm that we had which also effected Lake Tahoe with a snow storm. Eager to go to Lake Tahoe for the snow, but unable to, I wanted to make a VR scene that satisfy my cravings to be in the snowy mountains. In the first scene, there are two large trees that stands besides a sign that will take the viewer to the winter scene when they walk through it. These two large trees would attract the viewers attention and make them walk towards it. Overall, I ran in to many problems and roadblocks during this project but it was a great learning experience.
